

Camden Bryan, CHES®

Rural Health and Nutrition Agent
Clemson University
Anderson, South Carolina

Camden Bryan is a rural health and nutrition extension agent for Clemson Cooperative Extension and is a Certified Health Education Specialist (CHES®). During the pandemic, she worked with clinical and community partners to coordinate free COVID-19 vaccination and testing clinics to rural or underserved areas of South Carolina. Since then, Bryan has been working to deliver chronic disease prevention and self-management programs to Spanish-speaking residents of South Carolina, focusing on diabetes self-management. She graduated from Clemson University in 2021 with a degree in language and international health with an emphasis in Spanish language and community development.