Nicholas Coxon

Senior Managing Director, Head of Real Assets (Americas)—Client Solutions
Macquarie Asset Management
New York, New York

Nick is Head of Real Assets in the Americas for Macquarie Asset Management's (MAM's) Client Solutions Group. He is responsible for infrastructure and real assets product formation and co-investment in the region. He leads a team of people leading major capital-raising efforts for a number of MAM's key real assets products, which over the last few years has included successful capital raises for the Macquarie Infrastructure Partners (MIP) series, Macquarie Green Energy Transition Solutions (MGETS), MAM's infrastructure secondaries capability (MAPIF), and Macquarie Strategic Opportunities Fund (MSOF).

Nick joined the firm in 2010 and was based in London before relocating to New York in 2019. He was a key member of the European capital-raising team, and led a number of major capital raisings in the region. Nick also worked on several significant transactions in MAM's European infrastructure portfolio, including acquisitions, refinancing, and divestment processes.

He has a Bachelor of Arts in philosophy, politics, and economics from Oxford University.
