Andrew K. Lin's practice focuses primarily on representing employee benefit plans, principally multiemployer plans. Lin counsels plans providing benefits to construction workers, mineworkers, service workers and union staff as well as firefighters, police and other emergency personnel working in the public sector. Prior to moving to Mooney Green, he practiced law at the firm Slevin & Hart, P.C., where he represented employee benefit plans. Lin also clerked at the Service Employees International Union and the United Mine Workers of America as well as at Mooney Green. In September 2014, the D.C. Employment Justice Center named Lin its 2014 Pro Bono Counsel of the Year. Lin earned his J.D. degree from the Catholic University of America's Columbus School of Law in 2008, where he was an associate editor of the Catholic University Law Review, winning the Dean's Award in 2007 and the Otis M. Smith Award in 2008. Lin obtained his B.A. degree from Ohio State University in 2000, majoring in journalism and computer science.
