

Sergeant Dakota Meyer

United States Marine Corps Veteran

Medal of Honor Recipient

Author of Into the Fire

Dakota Meyer is a United States Marine and veteran of the war in Afghanistan who became the first living United States Marine in 41 years to receive the Medal of Honor, earned for his actions during the Battle of Ganjgal on September 8, 2009. His book about the events of that day, Into the Fire, was a New York Times best seller. Today, Meyer serves in the Individual Ready Reserve of the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve, is an advocate for American veterans, is the creator of the podcast Front Toward Enemy with Dakota Meyer, and is the entrepreneur behind Own The Dash and Flipside Canvas.