

Stephanie Moynihan, M.D.
Physician, Associate Medical Director
Dialogue
Montreal, Quebec

Dr. Moynihan is a family physician based in Montreal. She is the associate medical director at Dialogue, where she has been working as a telemedicine and consultant physician since 2017. In addition to practicing as a telemedicine physician, Dr. Moynihan is a founding board member of the Medical Board at Dialogue, which oversees the safety, quality and compliance of a multidisciplinary care team as well as the development of clinical practice guidelines, processes and procedures for people-centred virtual health care. She is also the lead physician for Dialogue's Mental Health+ Program, which she helped establish in 2018, and she is actively involved with the current development of their wellness program. Dr. Moynihan is a founding member and care team lead of Dialogue's Diversity & Inclusion Council, which helps ensure the provision of equitable, culturally competent, best quality care to all patients in order to decrease barriers to care and improve health outcomes. In addition to telemedicine, Dr. Moynihan sees patients at her community family medicine clinic in Montreal, with a practice focused on maternal and child health, mental health and transgender care. She also has experience in international and tropical medicine and worked abroad in Bénin as part of her medical residency. Dr. Moynihan holds an honours undergraduate degree in microbiology and immunology from McGill University and an M.D. degree from the Université de Montréal.
