Aaron Rice Music

Franklin, Tennessee

Aaron Rice is a Nashville-based songwriter, music business executive, and attorney whose career spans the creative, commercial, and legal sides of the entertainment industry. As a songwriter, Aaron is a Grammy nominee with seven Billboard No. 1 songs and has been signed to both major and independent music publishing companies. His success as a creator gives him rare, firsthand insight into the realities artists and writers face in building sustainable careers. Leveraging his creative background, Aaron transitioned into the business and legal arena, where he now represents artists, songwriters, producers, actors, and other creative professionals. His work focuses on music publishing, recording and production agreements, branding and endorsement deals, and intellectual property protection, helping clients navigate an increasingly complex and fast-evolving industry. Rooted in Nashville's songwriting culture, Aaron is known for his ability to translate creative vision into smart business and legal strategy. He brings a practical, artist-first approach to dealmaking and advocacy, informed by real-world experience on both sides of the table. As a speaker and panelist, Aaron offers a unique perspective on the intersection of creativity, commerce, and law, making him a trusted voice for creators, executives, and industry leaders alike.
