

Jaqui Rogers, M.B.A.

Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Consultant
BJC Healthcare
St. Louis, Missouri

Jaqui Rogers is a proud St. Louis native and resident with a passion for social justice and an innate gift for facilitating catalytic transformation. She is an experienced group facilitator and curriculum developer with a history of working in the health care and education industries. Her skills also include program development for nonprofit organizations, conflict resolution, leadership, research, community building and event organizing. Rogers' background and commitment to service has allowed her to build meaningful relationships with both community members and corporate influencers alike. She serves as an education and development coordinator of diversity, equity, and inclusion for one of the Midwest's largest health care systems. Rogers holds a B.S. degree in secondary education from the University of Missouri and a master's of business administration degree from Webster University. She is actively pursuing a Ph.D. degree focused in educational leadership and social justice at the University of Missouri–St. Louis and will graduate in the fall of 2024.
