

Leigh Stenby

Director of Enterprise Benefits Solutions

IMA

Denver, Colorado

Leigh has been an avid enthusiast for improving employee benefits for 27 years. She thrives on finding creative solutions to complex benefits issues.

Leigh began her benefits career learning the science and art of underwriting, leveraging her math degree. She continued her learning and growing at two large, national consulting firms, enjoying roles in financial consulting, account management, client leadership, people management, innovation, and practice leadership.

Leigh's professional cup is filled when she is able to help an organization reduce their unnecessary benefits expenses and reallocate that investment in areas that greatly improve their employees' lives. Leigh has worked with a variety of industries, including professional sports teams, school districts, technology, healthcare, restaurant and retail operations, professional services, and manufacturing. Leigh approaches team leadership and client management with a spirit of partnership and consistent communication. She develops strategies that provide cost mitigation and trend reductions while enhancing value to employees.

Leigh lives in Colorado with her husband, son, and dog. She enjoys all outdoor Colorado activities, including hiking, skiing, and browsing farmers' markets.