

Linda K. Stone, FSA, MAAA

Senior Pension Fellow
Women's Institute for a Secure Retirement (WISER)
Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania

Linda K. Stone is an expert in retirement security issues and has worked to improve retirement solutions within the structure of employer-sponsored plans as well as through education and advocacy on the individual level. Linda is the Senior Pension Fellow at the American Academy of Actuaries. In this role, she shapes and communicates the Academy's work on retirement and Social Security to the public, policymakers, and the news media. She previously was a Managing Principal at an international Human Resource consulting firm where she specialized in working with companies to create and deliver innovative solutions to manage costs and risks with emphasis on the design and financing of defined benefit and defined contribution retirement plans. Linda has a passion for women and retirement issues and for helping women make prudent financial decisions. In her role as a WISER Fellow, she is a frequent conference speaker on the unique challenges facing women and how to address them. She graduated from St. Joseph's University (SJU) with a degree in mathematics and economics.
