

Ryan Wolf, Ed.D., M.B.A.

Well-Being Consulting Manager
Gallagher
Omaha, Nebraska

Ryan Wolf is a seasoned professional specializing in leadership, human capital and well-being. With a doctor of education degree from Nebraska Methodist College and an M.B.A. degree focusing on management and health care, Ryan's expertise lies at the intersection of organizational effectiveness and individual flourishing. As a Gallup Global Strengths Coach, Ryan has led global well-being teams and spearheaded initiatives across the APAC, EMEA and AMER regions. His contributions range from designing comprehensive HR and benefits strategies to facilitating skill-building sessions worldwide. Ryan's experience includes roles at Gallup where he managed well-being, benefits, and HR programs; authored articles for Gallup and Harvard Business Review; and consulted with clients. Ryan serves on multiple boards and volunteers his time coaching several youth sports teams. With a passion for empowering individuals and organizations to thrive, Ryan is dedicated to creating a positive impact on a global scale.