

Sandi J. Stein

Global Benefits Director
Brown Brothers Harriman
New York City, New York

Sandi J. Stein is currently the global head of benefits at Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. (BBH). She is responsible for furthering the global benefits agenda at BBH, which includes the global benefits platform as well as the firm's global mobility program, with a commitment to delivering programs that are market competitive, cost-effective, business-aligned and employee-relevant. She also leads an award-winning well-being program. In addition, Stein is the global chair of BBH's Pride Network. Prior to her role at BBH, she held the office of vice president–global benefits, including global mobility, at NYSE Euronext and delivered competitive, best-in-class benefit programs for the organization and related subsidiary companies. Her core areas of responsibility included strategic program design, regulatory compliance, and program cost management and efficiency. Stein specializes in cross-border mergers and acquisition integration as well as corporate wellness initiatives. Stein joined Securities Industry Automation Corporation (SIAC) in 1991 as a 401(k) benefits specialist. In 2006, SIAC became a wholly-owned subsidiary of the New York Stock Exchange, where she assumed the lead human resources/benefits role. She is the vice chair of the Northeast Business Group on Health. Stein served as a member of Executives on Campus, a mentoring program offered to Baruch College graduate students, as well as a past treasurer for the Boys Towns of Italy, a nonprofit organization providing invaluable educational and vocational opportunities for migrant boys from war-torn countries. Stein earned a bachelor's degree in psychology from SUNY Albany and completed coursework as a certified financial planner from New York University.